Everybody wants the planning commission to get tough about use permits in the residence district but, "Why start with the Red Cross?" several people have asked since Wednesday, last week. At a public hearing at that time the planning commission said no to a permit for the Red Cross to build a work room on the East side of Dolores Street, two lots south of the corner of Eighth. This is in the residence district.

Four of the planning commission members voted yes, but four were not enough. It takes five yeses for the seven-member board to approve a use permit.

Why did three say a no?
Keith Evans: "There should be a master plan, and until there is, I don't think there should be any further use permits granted."

Donald Craig: "I think there are areas that might be better suited. Another use permit granted in this area would be a serious intrusion into a residence zone which is already suffering from too many special permits for non-residential uses and in danger of losing its character as an area zoned for single family residential use."

Florence Josselyn's reasons appear in her answers to two questions asked by the petitioners: "What is an acceptable use?"

Mrs. Josselyn: "Your use would be acceptable except as to our planning proposals."

"Will the commission grant any further use permits?"

Mrs. Josselyn: "We can't say but we are constantly told to hold the line."

Each of these are legal, valid reasons, as shall appear below when we quote the ordinance code. But Mrs. Josselyn's last statement alone is justification for the no vote.

Why start with the Red Cross in an effort to "hold the line?"

If not with the Red Cross, where is the planning commission going to start? For years the members have been saying yes to non-residence use in the residence district because, "We can't say no this time. It is such a good cause. We'll say no next time for sure."

Next time the cause has always been as appealing and compelling as the last. And it always will be. Only good causes are allowed. We quote from the zoning ordinance:

"In order to prevent or lessen unnecessary hardship or practical difficulties where it is exceptionally difficult or not absolutely necessary to comply with the strict letter of the code . . . the board shall have the power to approve issuances of permits to permit religious, charitable, educational and philanthropic institutions and fraternal organizations, including civic clubs, to be maintained in any district."

These are all worthy causes but: "Before any permit is approved for any adjustment or use, the board shall carefully examine all pertinent facts relating to the (Continued on Page Three)

Carmel Portraits . . .

By DAISY BOSTICK

Every one calls him Pop Smith—even in the phone directory he is listed by that name—and he likes it. Few know that he was once Private Cecil Smith in the United States Army and that he chased Aguinaldo around the Philippines in the Spanish-American War. Lest you have forgotten your history that war started in 1898.

Private Smith had many a grouch against the Army for the food, lodging and regulations they provided but he had a swell time nevertheless. Tragedy has touched him three times in the loss of his wife and two sons but his philosophical outlook and eternal optimism have kept him cheerful, active, and alert to the problems of today.

Pop (born Cecil) Smith is a Britisher, born in Putney, a suburb of London. He recalls many details of his early youth. He remembers when Aunt Mary took him shopping in the daytime and carried a lantern to light their way through the London fog; but he strayed to one side, bumped into a lamp-post and was taken home with a bloody nose. He was probably a little cherub as he sang solos in the church but he also climbed into the family attic, retrieved mud from the rain gutters and threw it down on the heads of the passers-by. At that time little gentlemen dressed in short coats, long grey trousers and wore mortar-boards on their heads. They were also supposed to be sent abroad to be educated and to acquire culture. So at the tender age of ten he found himself boarding with a German family at Neumed, Germany, and being tutored. When he returned to his home in England after six years he spoke German better than English.

At age twenty he was apprenticed to a rancher in Denver, Colorado, where he was supposed to learn to be a man of the great outdoors and to rough it. After many difficulties including having his vegetables growing down instead of up, of being pitched off a horse, and unable to learn how to milk, he became a cowboy—of sorts. He then started a lifetime of wanderlust. Long tiresome walks from one job to another. He worked in a bakery, a smelter, a flour mill and a machine shop. When the Spanish-American War threatened he joined the Army largely because he liked a cape with a yellow lining which a friend who had enlisted was wearing. The troop ship Ohio which had the reputation of turning turtle at inopportune moments carried him to the Philippines where he saw service until the war ended and the uprising of the rebel Aguinaldo was halted. He came back home, went around to different posts and was finally mustered out. And then life became a series of small jobs, inconsequential, unsatisfactory and depressing. At Sacramento he worked as a waiter for four dollars a week and board. Tried his hand in the toy department of a big store. Then became a laundry marker and distributor.

Cecil had never had any sentimental episodes with the opposite sex and he was too much of a rover to think of marriage but he was finally snared by a pretty girl, Luella Emma Williams, in Sacramento. They were married and for years the couple moved from place to place seeking the elusive success which was always just around the corner. They had many ups and downs, both of them working when they could (Continued on Page Twelve)

Freeway Would Force Destruction Of Homes Map At City Hall Shows

A public hearing on the proposed Carmel Freeway will be held here sometime in January, according to a letter received this week by Mayor Horace Lyon from the state highway commission.

In the meantime, detailed maps of both the freeway development paralleling the present highway and the alternate route through Hatton Canyon are on display in the city hall, where they will remain on view until the hearing.

Red Cross Postpones Decision On Appeal

The executive committee of the Red Cross, meeting Thursday morning, postponed decision until Tuesday on whether or not they would appeal to the city council the planning commission's refusal last week to approve their application for a use permit to build a work room on a residential lot on Dolores Street near Eighth.

The Red Cross has five days after publication of the legal notice of the planning commission's decision in which to file an appeal with the city clerk. The legal notice appears in this issue of the Pine Cone.

If the Red Cross decides to appeal, the council must set a date for a hearing not sooner than five days after publication of notice of the hearing.

Members of the executive committee present at the meeting were: Mrs. Walter Nielsen, chairman; Mrs. A. Carol McKenney, vice-chairman; Mrs. Mark Raggett, secretary; Robert Cairns, treasurer; Mrs. Geraldine Smith, Lt. Gen. J. L. Underhill, Edward C. Banfield, Mrs. Eleanor Poyer, Fred Mylar, Matthew Jenkins. Absent: Carl Patnude.

Mrs. Smith and Mr. Patnude are also members of the Carmel City Council. Two other members of the five-member city council are directors of the Red Cross: Mayor Horace Lyon and Councilman John Chitwood.

Litterbags Arrive Mrs. Wells Reports To Business Ass'n

Enos Fouratt, local realtor, was elected president of the Carmel Business Association at the annual Christmas dinner at La Playa Wednesday night. Lloyd Weer was named treasurer, Robert Spencer, secretary, and Ralph Castagna, vice president. New directors elected were Mark Raggett, J. O. Handley and Arne Halle.

Mrs. Joseph Wells, reporting on the progress of the litterbug campaign, said 10,000 litterbags, ordered by the association, had arrived and the Girl Scouts had undertaken to thread them with the string. She had some to distribute to the members at the meeting, and said that more were obtainable at The Wells Music Store. As soon as the Girl Scouts finish with their project the bags will be left at the service stations for distribution.

It was announced that the parking committee expected to complete their petitions within the next day or so. Of the $919,820 assessed value of business property needed for the petitions, signatures representing $843,160 had been obtained at the time of the meeting.

The two maps, which were hung in the city hall on Wednesday, were drawn up by E. J. L. Petersen, district engineer for the state.

The proposed freeway routes, complete with overpasses and connecting roads, are superimposed on large aerial photos of Highway No. 1 and vicinity. Both plans indicate overpasses at the Carpenter Street intersection with the highway and at the junction with Carmel Valley Road.

The map of the freeway development to parallel the present highway indicates some drastic slashes into the existing residential area abutting the highway both north and south of Ocean Avenue. In order to make room for the east-west overpass connecting Ocean Avenue and the high school, the double-lane highway bows west from the present roadway, eliminating at least a dozen existing homes. Frontage roads and connections angling from the freeway and into Ocean Avenue would slice diagonally through additional residential property.

In addition, all existing roads offering access to the highway between Rio Road and Ocean Avenue would be closed. Access to Peninsula Community Hospital from the highway would also be eliminated.

The Hatton Canyon Route, the alternate proposal, would make Carpenter the principal access into Carmel. If this route were adopted, the present Highway No. 1 would probably revert to a county road. Access to the existing highway and to the hospital is indicated via an overpass located approximately at Valley Way. The Hatton Canyon Route would not intersect any existing residential development.

Williams Aid Highly Winding Up 3 Months' Loon Count Project

Since the first of September Laidlaw Williams and the president of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society, Elmer Highley, have been carrying on the loon migration count. At certain times they go to Point Pinos and tally the loons that pass in a half hour period. Mr. Williams says that there are three species here, the Common Loon, the Arctic or Pacific Loon, and the Red-Throated (Continued on Page Nine)

BASKETBALL JAMBOREE AT CARMEL GYM TONIGHT

For the first time since its inclusion in the sports program of the Coast Counties Athletic League, the annual league basketball Jamboree comes to the Carmel pavilion. Tonight, at 6:30 sharp, the gentlemen in the striped shirts will have the roundball in the air to send the Gonzales Spartans and the Salinas Cowboys into action in the first round of the abbreviated tournament. The Cowboys and Spartans will play two five-minute quarters with the winner moving into the championship bracket and the loser heading for the consolation round. Second game of the evening matches the hosting Carmel Padres with the Hollister Haybalers. Following the Padre-Haybaler tussle, the two favorites for the league will match baskets as Pacific Grove and Gilroy answer the referee's whistle. These two quintets are loaded with sterling basketball talent and it will take a good prep team to beat either one of them this year. Pacific Grove has the best set shot in the CCAL in the person of Cal Moldenhauer, a speedy and rangy front line combination of Larry Quentel and John Crawford, plus an all-CCAL guard in Tom Hoy. Gilroy, winner of the Carmel Tournament last year, has three returning starters from last season's potent aggregation. The devastating Mustang passing combination of Ron Leonti to Chris Costello switches from football to basketball with the nifty ball-handling Leonti feeding high-scoring Costello to spark the Mustang scoring attack. Game number four in tonight's hoopfest matches a new member of CCAL, Live Oak (Morgan Hill), with the veteran squad from King City. Hard at basketball practice since September, the lads from Live Oak should surprise some of the old timers in the B division. Live Oak has shown to advantage in practice games against CCAL schools, winning more often than losing when matched with the likes of Gilroy, Carmel, Gonzales, and Hollister. King City will throw a well-balanced team against Live Oak, going with such seasoned performers as Tsasos Melitis, Jim Albanese, and diminutive Frank Padilla. Padilla, only 5-4 when stretching to the utmost, was the popular favorite at last year's Carmel Tournament as he led the King City gang to upset wins over big Monterey and Pacific Grove.

PADRE CAGERS SEE ACTION IN JAMBOREE TONIGHT

After three weeks of dribbling, passing, shooting, and defensive fundamentals, the Carmel High basketball squad are going into real action tonight as both the lightweight and varsity squads enter league Jamboree hoop competition. While the varsity is busy hosting the rest of the B division schools, the Little Padres will visit Pacific Grove to get acquainted with the other lightweight teams in the league. Action for both hoopfests is slated to get underway at 6:30.

A 20-man lightweight squad will make the trip to Pacific Grove although Jamboree action is limited to 15 players per school. However, before a player takes the floor at PG he must pass a weigh-in test administered by league commissioner Burt Talcot. A few extra pounds at the wrong end of the scale can make a player an ex-lightweight in a hurry. Besides a starting five of Jim Konrad, Mark Hildebrand, Merv Sutton, Bill McCormack, and Ron Huffman, the following lightweight hopefuls will journey to Pacific Grove: Dick Albertson, Jim Bannerman, Dick Leutinger, Dennis Taplin, Graves Cox, Chuck Solomon, Bob Durbrow, Jim Lee, Roger Shields, Charles Harden, Bert Macahallig, Jim Faia, Bob Leidig, Teddy Childers, and Charles Agle.

Carmel's varsity will go into Jamboree action with a starting five of Bob Wise and John Farrell, forwards, George Wightman, center, with John Zellhoefer and Paul Fratessa at the guards. Dick Jennings, Clyde Klaumann, Mike Mosolf, Gary Nielsen, Dick Ogden and Charley Dawson.

The Little Padres see their first action at 7:45 when they square off against the Live Oak limiteds in the fourth game of the tournament-type Jamboree. Carmel's varsity hits the court at 6:55 against Coach Bob Matson's Hollister Haybalers.

CARMELITES PLACE SECOND IN WEEKEND STYGIAN RALLY

Larry Rose and Glenn Kearns, both of Carmel, finished second overall in a field of 129 sports cars in the 12-hour Stygian Rally staged last weekend by Sports Cars Unlimited.

The Rose-Kearns team, co-driving a modified Jaguar coupe entered by Clyde N. Young, came within a scant 60 seconds of winning time for the gruelling all-night reliability run, which began and ended in Lafayette. Starting at 8:00 o'clock Saturday night, the rally covered a 354-mile course through Contra Costa, Yolo, Napa, Sonoma, Mendocino and Solano counties with five check points, 22 changes of average speed and a midnight supper of beans and hot dogs to be contended with en route.

Larry and Glenn returned home wearily but happily on Sunday with a handsome trophy and two silver plaques for their showing. Their split-second timing of the rally was abetted by a slide rule and a photo timer, but the real secret of their success, they say, is a "system"—and they're not about to tell what.

case under consideration and shall find:

"(1) that the granting of a permit will not adversely affect the general zoning plan of the city;

"(2) that the character of the neighborhood will not be adversely affected;

"(3) that there are special circumstances connected with the case wherein strict adherence to the ordinance would inflict undue hardship upon the applicant or the use or adjustment requested is trivial and unobjectional and is a reasonable liberty to allow the property owner under existing conditions.

"In considering adjustments and use permits, the board shall exercise its powers in such a way that public welfare is secured and substantial justice done in accordance with the intent and purpose of this ordinance."

Stated elsewhere in the code, the intent and purpose of the ordinance is to protect the home owner.

From the above it can be seen that it is not sufficient that the cause be good. The decisions of the planning commission in the past to accommodate institutions with sterling purposes have adversely affected the neighborhoods in which the permits have been granted. They have perpetrated injustices on the home owners and have adversely affected the zoning ordinance. In most of the cases the organizations granted permits in the residence district could have built in the business district without undue hardship.

This is not an indictment of the planning commission's past actions. Each case seemed meritorious as it came up. Taken separately the use permits did not seem to be damaging, but now their cumulative effect is apparent to anyone looking at the zoning map of Carmel in the city hall.

Instead of questioning the three, the citizens should be congratulating them on finding the courage to say no at last when no was clearly indicated on the merits of the case and as a belated start to preserve what is left of our vanishing residence district.

Conservation On The March

A Weekly Column by
O. Edward Graves
Western Representative,
National Parks Association

I am writing this week's column as I sit in my car on the edge of the bluff above Garrapata Beach. We are eating our Thanksgiving Day "dinner" of smoked turkey sandwiches and watching as wild a display of wind-blown waves as I have ever seen. Our intention of a beach luncheon was suddenly changed when we found the beach covered with many feet of foaming water and a thirty-mile gale blowing.

This is a beach that should be added to the state park system as soon as practicable. Conservationists who believe that recreational and inspirational values are sometimes more worth conserving than utilitarian values will certainly agree with me, if they have ever visited this beach. It is a real adventure in beauty.

The legal recognition of intangible recreational values has just taken striking form in a decision by the U. S. Court of Appeals for the 7th Circuit. My good friend, Dick Leonard, President of the Sierra Club, has just sent me a resume of this decision. Dick is one of the leading lawyers of San Francisco and his trained legal mind was quick to perceive the importance of this decision.

It concerns an application of the Namekagon Hydro Company to the Federal Power Commission to construct a dam and hydro-electric project on the Namekagon River in Wisconsin. It seems that there are only 770 miles of free-flowing rivers left in the state out of a total of 10,000 at the time Wisconsin was admitted to the Union. The lower 22 miles of this river are one of those free-flowing rivers. It is said that "the uniqueness of the river is most apparent to those who make a float trip, the vacationist having the illusion of being in a forest primeval, far from civilization."

The Federal Power Commission, in accordance with an amendment to the Federal Power Act in 1935 authorizing the Commission to include recreational purposes as a consideration in passing on applications for dam projects, refused permission for this dam. This has now been upheld by the Court of Appeals and is a notable victory for recreationists. It strengthens greatly in a legal way the position of the conservation groups who are trying to prevent the building of Echo Park Dam in Dinosaur National Monument.

I don't even know where this beautiful 22-mile stretch of the Namekagon River is but I am going to find out and keep it in my list of objectives. Dam building is fast ruining our best rivers for recreationists and with atomic energy just around the corner we need to keep at least a few of them "unimpaired for the enjoyment of future generations".

USO Hall Jammed For Forum Discussion

A record crowd filled the USO hall to overflowing last Monday night to hear the argument in Open Forum on the decline of the American male. Of the six members on the debating panel, Gen. Ernest J. Dawley took the most forthright stand against the view that the male is slipping. He took an equally favorable view of the girls, however.

The several speakers approach-

Esther Fish

Mrs. Esther Fish, 60, a resident of the Peninsula for many years, died November 25 at her home, Palo Corona Ranch. Death was unexpected, though she had been in poor health for some time.

She was born in 1894 in Boston, one of the twin daughters of the late Eugene Noble Foss, former governor of Massachusetts, and the late Mrs. Lila Sturtevant Foss. Her husband, the late Sidney Fish, died February 6, 1950.

She leaves two children by a former marriage, David S. Moore of San Francisco and Mrs. Henry Rathbun of Chevy Chase, Maryland; a twin sister, Mrs. Henry Forrester of Marion, Massachusetts; two brothers, Eugene Noble Foss, Jr., of Ashville, North Carolina, and Benjamin S. Foss of Brookline, Massachusetts; a stepson, Stuyvesant Fish of Carmel; and four grandchildren, Sheila and Davis Moore of San Francisco and Jenny and Gordon Rathbun of Chevy Chase.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Palo Corona Ranch, with the Rev. Canon Charles A. Dowdell officiating.

ed the subject from different angles, without dividing sharply for the male or the female. Dr. Talcott Bates brought a timely touch of humor into the discussion, including the citation of a "case history" he had recently been reading. He expressed the hope that no colleague would regard it as an offense against the Hippocratic oath when he mentioned the names of the parties concerned. He proceeded to give chapter and verse, namely Genesis Chapter 2: verses 21 to 23.

Dr. Freidy Heisler made a profound impression on the audience as the concluding speaker. One questioner felt moved to ask whether she believed that the United States is becoming a nation of adult infants. Moderator Louis Balsam saw possibilities of this question being debated at the next Open Forum. Mrs. Margaret Bates, Miss Flavia Flavin and Dr. Eugene Haderlie were equally original in adding food for thought as members of the panel.

Madge Francis

Mrs. Madge Poffenberger Francis, a Carmel resident since 1945, died November 27 in a local hospital after a short illness. She was 75.

She was born October 19, 1879, in Sutter County. Her marriage to George H. Francis took place in 1899 in San Francisco. For 55 years the couple lived in Napa, where Mr. Francis was publisher and part owner of the Napa Register. Summer visitors here for many years, the Francis moved here following his retirement from the newspaper business and established their home on San Pedro Lane in Carmel Woods.

In addition to her husband, Mrs. Francis leaves a niece, Mrs. Barbara Benjamin McDonald of Chicago, and an aunt, Mrs. Eben Dickey of Woodland.

Funeral services were held Monday at St. Mary's Episcopal Church in Napa.

The Three Bears ride on Family Fares

(to the East and Midwest)

Now the whole family can go along when Papa Bear goes on a trip to the East or Midwest! With Southern Pacific's Family Fares, Mama Bear and all the little bears (or people) can go too, for so little money that it's cheaper than leaving them home.

Incidentally, Father doesn't even have to go. Mama can serve as the head of the household for the purpose of Family Fares.

Family Fares are good in both Chair Cars and Sleeping Cars.

So, next time you're planning a trip to the East or Midwest, plan to take the family with you. Don't be misled by high-flying, extravagant claims, either. Be sure to find out how little it will actually cost for your family to use Southern Pacific's Family Fares. Just ask your nearest S. P. Agent for full details.

Vinegar Tree A Spirit-Lifter . . .

By VIRGINIA SHAW

A lot of happy things occurred over the Thanksgiving holiday, but none of them happier than The Vinegar Tree, the play which opened Friday at the Golden Bough Players' Circle.

The new production is a pure delight for any number of reasons, chief among them being Ruth Marion McElroy in what is surely one of her richest, funniest and most lovable roles. Paul Osborn's The Vinegar Tree is a comedy with a head and a heart: sophisticated without being supercilious, tender without being mawkish, and briskly sauced with wit which is both wise and warm. Lee Crowe's deft, sensitive direction of his experienced cast helps to sustain the fun from first to last.

The Vinegar Tree is a play about love and lovers, all kinds and flavors. There's mature, if sometimes myopic, love in the persons of giddy, garrulous Laura Merrick, Ruth McElroy, and her crochety husband, Augustus, Mason Wright; young and mixed-up love in their ripe but naive daughter, Leona, Zize Coyne, and her would-be worldly soul mate, Geoffrey, Paul West; slightly shopworn love in Laura's much-wedded-and-bedded sister, Winifred, Gertrude Chappell, and Max, Don Gunderson, a charming but lightly cynical artist and an old flame around whom Laura flutters like a distracted middle-aged moth. The intersecting triangles which develop during a grand right-and-left in a weekend at the Merricks' country house form the basis for Mr. Osborn's well-wrought script and the exposition and development of some rare characters.

The lightheaded, warmhearted Laura is played by actress McElroy with such seemingly spontaneous bravura that one is only subconsciously aware of the mechanics of her talent: the superb timing, unfailing showmanship and command of gesture, intonation and expression which invest every part she plays with such buoyant life. Her perfect compliment is found in Mason Wright, as the apoplectic Augustus. Mr. Wright's projection of the part is complete and confident, reflecting the temper of the testy husband in everything from his short, bristling mustache to his outthrust, slightly aggressive manner of moving. He augments the effect of his characterization by delivering his lines in controlled staccato bursts which fall like well-placed flak on the scene.

As the smoothly mannered, somewhat sardonic Max, Don Gunderson is dramatically excellent though visually perhaps too much the fair-haired boy to be a convincing middle-aged roue. Gertrude Chappell is cattily poised in her role of the amoral Winifred, speaking her lines with faintly acidulous archness and fairly sneering with her hips when she walks. Two engaging newcomers to the arena stage, Zize Coyne and Paul West, are each delightful in their roles as the earnest and uninitiated young sweethearts. Completing the cast is Byong Tai Cho as the elegantly-waistcoated valet, Louis.

Bill Kappy has done his usual artful and inventive job of set design and stage management, dressing the set with some handsome furniture and bric-a-brac which, though its arrangement seems casual and intimate, allows a maximum of uncluttered space for the actors to move about in easily and freely. Particularly effective is the charming garden entrance fashioned around one of the theatre's doorways. Among those contributing to the production are Tom Segnitz, lights; Henry Dunakin, music; Gene Eplett, properties, and Allyn, makeup.

Since The Vinegar Tree is already being hailed as the best offering yet at the Players Circle, it will undoubtedly command full houses to the very end of its run. For entertainment, it stands as the best spirit-lifter we are likely to have during the whole holiday season.

AUTUMN PEACH TREE

*The leaves slowly fall
In peels of orange segments
Patterning the ground
With thin slices of color—
Pungencies for the winter.*

—DAVINA KOSH

OF THE IMMEASURABLE

*Thick as sedge yet long as windrow—
Who can measure grievous thought?
Even empathy were futile
To compute a mind distraught.*

*Sacrifice one's youth to Moloch?
First-born right of joy, to death?
Concept then becomes so narrow
Precept loses all its breadth.*

*Still, a freshet of omiscience
Will confound unmeasured grief,
Countless miles of hurt self-pity
Drown in measureless relief.*

—OTHELIA LILLY

LEAF-MUSIC

*The fallen leaves have music of their own
Unnoticed by the devotees of Spring.
They lie in patterns that the wind has thrown Awaiting but a touch to make them sing.
A footstep brings a clear and delicate sound
A whispering, light and pianissimo.
They rustle, hush and crinkle on the ground
As though the Autumn's fingers tuned them so.*

*These crisp and tiny voices, dry and sere,
Like tinkling crystals tapping at the pane
Give forth the last leaf-music of the year,
And will be silenced by the beat of rain.
Before the blaring of the winter blasts
Walk gently here and listen while it lasts.*

FIGURINE

*She climbed a hill
In a dove-grey dress
With a crimson scarf,
And the wind's caress
Blew her skirts
So wide and free . . .
And no one knew
No one could see
How she climbed a hill
In a dove-grey dress
With a crimson scarf . . .
And in loneliness.*

—VERNE TAYLOR BENEDICT

An Enchanting Art . . .

By HARRIET KEEN ROBERTS

*God gave all men all arts to love,
But since our hearts are small,
Ordained for each one art should prove
Beloved over all;
That, as He watched Creation's birth,
So we, in godlike mood,
May of our love create our art
And see that it is good.*

The change of only one word in the first verse of Kipling's Sussex makes it express what I feel about the monologue. As one music lover gets her greatest delight from opera, another from the string quartet, as sculpture means most to one connoisseur, etching to another, so to me the monologue, where one actress peoples the stage with a score of wildly different "characters", is more intriguing than a stage play. Perhaps it is because the first great actor and actress I ever saw were past masters of that difficult art. My mother had snatched me from my boarding-school—and that was a treat in itself—so that she could take me to see and hear a recital, half given by Albert Chevalier and half by Yvette Guilbert. The pathos and tenderness of Chevalier's My Old Dutch, the rollicking Cockney humor of his Knocked 'em in the Old Kent Road still echo in my memory. I can't have grasped much of Guilbert's Parisian argot, but the incomparable charm of her gestures as she said—sang?—in her exquisite broken English "I will gevee you ze keys of Heaven" was unforgettable. Since then I can hardly count the number of times that I have rejoiced as Ruth Draper showed her English garden, with its "dear little glubjullahs". And how good it has been to be reminded of our present day motoring mercies by the bouncing and jouncing of a veiled Cornelia Otis Skinner in an imaginary car of the "Genevieve" vintage.

This small bit of autobiography is given, not because it is of any importance, but to prove that when I say that Miss Dorothy Crawford is a monologist of the first rank, I am comparing her with the great modern exemplars of her art. Indeed in one of the sketches which she gave last Saturday at the Sunset Auditorium, Solitaire, Miss Crawford reached a tragic depth that I cannot remember in any other monologue. It is an old anguish, jealousy, as old as Eve and Lilith, as new as the latest trial in Salinas. Miss Crawford shows it to us in one of those sudden crises where the truth of an emotion can no longer be concealed.

Her versatility was shown in all of the five character sketches of her choice. First Love gave us the fussy, foolish, loving mother of a teen-age daughter who has gone, her mother knows not where, and who is still out at midnight. Before the daughter's return we have met and laughed at the entire family. I revelled most, perhaps, in the gentle wickedness of her old lady who, in House for Sale, gradually realizes what the prospective purchasers are like and as gradually "puts them off" with delicious neatness and malice. Liza, her German cook, who left because the family were too careful of their figures, was the essence of all the good old-fashioned maids who both loved and bullied the households in which they served.

I hope that Miss Crawford's delicious mockery of an English party in Sherry at Six may do as much to improve that painful British entertainment as Ruth Draper's An Englishwoman Shows Her Garden has modified and shortened the ordeal at which she mocked. But does Miss Crawford realize how much worse than their Sherry parties an English cocktail party can be?

In spite of the Thanksgiving holiday absences, a large audience delighted in Miss Crawford's art, longed for more of it, and helped swell the coffers of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, for whose benefit the recital was given.

The Needler

By Beth

Mother of a five-year-old son was telling me about a conversation at her home one evening recently. A gentleman guest was discussing television programs with her, and during the conversation turned to the little boy and said, in the idle manner adults sometimes have with children:

"Would you like to have a television?" he asked.

"No, thank you," replied the lad, politely.

Girl in a local office was having skirt band trouble one morning this week and was in dire need of a safety pin. None being available, another member of the office staff suggested a staple or two. The stapling machine was applied, and the danger of losing a skirt on Dolores Street was greatly diminished.

Another young lady in town was faced with a critical problem one day recently. She was running the water for a bath when the phone rang. She dashed out, inadvertently slamming the bathroom door behind her. The door lock was one of those rope affairs often to be found in Carmel, and the slamming of the door forced the rope lock out on the other side. When the young lady finished her phone conversation she returned to the bathroom but couldn't get in and became more and more frantic at the sound of fast-running water inside. She used every tool she could find, from a pair of pliers to a pair of tweezers and was just about to call the police, fire department and the water company, when one of the devices worked. She had her bath all right, but her jitters remained for several hours.

Reminds me of the time I lived at my place up Carmel Valley and was down feeding the chickens one morning when I heard a truck coming up the hill. I ducked into the chicken house for sanctuary because I was wearing a disreputable-looking bathrobe. The truck was the one to haul garbage away and all would have been well because his errand would have only taken him a few minutes. However, in the meantime a local cowboy came riding down one of the trails and he paused to pass the time of day with the garbage man. The conversation lasted for more than an hour. Suddenly, to my horror, I heard them discussing chickens and through the crack of the door I saw them strolling over toward the chicken house. How could I explain spending more than an hour in that rather unpleasant small building? They paused at the gate and continued their chicken talk and finally, at long last, went on their way. Phew!

Somebody goofed! Noticed in a clipping from an out-of-town newspaper concerning the wedding of a daughter of friends of mine that "the bride and groom met in front of an altar flanked by white mums and stalk."

It was bound to happen department: In the opening scene of The Vinegar Tree one of the characters is seated in a chair away from the central action and is sound asleep, snoring loudly. His chair is placed near the audience for, as you know, this is a theater-in-the-round production. On opening night, a lady in the audience seated near the character became irate at his seeming rudeness and tried vainly to shush him. She was heard to remark to the person near her—"Imagine that man falling asleep and it's still only the first act!" Incidentally, this play at the Golden Bough Circle is a "must." Ruthie McElroy is great.

On their return from their Tahoe cabin, Bill and Carol Brown were recounting happenings during their week's stay up there. "Finished up the roll of film in the camera," said Carol, "and I tried to get some real good pictures of Beau." A picture of a white poodle standing in the snow?

The Time Has Come.

By Kippy Stuart

Every garden should have one or two flowering perennials to break the monotony of evergreen background, and to bring surprises in their blooming periods. There are myriad varieties of short, tall and medium bushes as well as tall majestic trees that bloom in their season.

One of my favorite shrubs in this category is the escallonia, a handsome shrub from South America, belonging to the saxifrage family. Some may be trained into trees, while others take well to the purpose of hedges and shrubs. The escallonia makes dense, mound-like shrubs from six to fifteen feet in height. The younger growth glistens with resinous glands and is covered with tubular shaped flowers, born in clusters; white, pink, or deep red. Escallonia is very easy to propagate by cuttings.

If you have ever seen a dahlia tree in full bloom, you will remember it. There is one now, in full flower on the Truck Route as you approach Highway No. One. It is called one of several names, Bell Tree or Candelabra Dahlia. It is listed in Hortus Second as Excelsa imperialis maxoni. But who cares about that trumpet flourish? The thing is a beautiful spectacle and grows well in this locality. There are too few dahlia trees around here.

The choysa or Mexican orange is a lovely thing, and even the foliage is fragrant. While there is no one plant answering to the name of Mock Orange, choysa frequently gets called mock orange, since its blossoms simulate the round, white clusters usually connected with that name. Choysa makes beautiful hedges and will also turn into a charming feature shrub, if placed strategically.

Abelia is another favorite blooming perennial. This bush is a feathery, airy fellow, with lace-like foliage. Flowers are rather small yet grow in compact clusters, giving the impression of blossoms showering all over the place. Colors of abelia flowers: white, pink, on down to deep flame color.

I have in my own garden a royal horse-chestnut tree that blooms deep red. I never was so surprised in my life when last spring the buds burst scarlet! Where on earth did a red flowering horse chestnut tree come from? I inquired and discovered that this species was rather common in Australia. It is a honey, and while branches are bare today, come spring the tree will burst into flame.

Everyone has seen and identified the Australian Tea tree. This makes excellent wind breaks and blooms profusely, yet few know that this shrub belongs to the leptospermum family, which family also boasts other more delicate shrubs. Ask your nurseryman to show you the new blooming Leptospermum scoparium or bullatum or chapmani. Any one of these shrubs is colorful and a long bloomer. For goodness sake, go out now, in this good planting season, and get your garden some blooming perennials.

Christmas Party

S. Claus made his first public appearance of the pre-holiday season in Carmel Wednesday night, showing up complete with gifts and goodies at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Abernethy who entertained that night for the personnel of the local Monterey County Bank.

The arrival of Santa — there were those who claimed he bore a suspicious resemblance to Bill Walker — was the high point of the festive cocktail-buffet party fairly redolent of Christmas cheer. Feature of the decorations devised by Mrs. Abernethy for the occasion was a silvered manzanita Christmas tree which stood in the stair hall. Surrounded by gifts, the tree was hung with strings of red and silver beads, silver wreaths and red bows. A large silver Christmas stocking hung from the stairs, and a wreath of red Christmas balls decorated the fireplace.

The turkey supper was served from a kitchen buffet, the table spread with a red cloth centered with a red and white flower arrangement. Throughout the house was a profusion of flowers, most of them sent Mrs. Abernethy for her birthday, which was Tuesday — "though I've been celebrating it for the past two weeks," she said.

Assisting the hostess were Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ray and Lucille Ray, who accompanied the group in the singing of the traditional Christmas carols. Additional entertainment was supplied by Mrs. Pearl Robert and Miss Bea Ralston, who took color photos of the entire party and also showed color slides taken during the past year at the bank.

In addition to those mentioned above, the guests were Sylvia Arndt, Robert Balser, Mary Lou Beshore, Alison Cathro, Sam Coleman, Mary Englebrecht, William Giles, Hope Hasty, Georgia Martin, Janet McPhail, Carol Petty, William Walker and Ernest Wilson.

The Kirby Lows' Fifth

Not nearly so big as the Thanksgiving turkey but ten times cuter is Robert Kirby Low, the six pound, nine ounce son welcomed just the day before the holiday by the Kirby Lows.

Young Robert Kirby, who made his appearance at Peninsula Hospital, is number five for the Lows, and their second son. Their other children are Claire, Eric, Annette, and Noel.

Paternal grandparents of the children are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Low of Carmel. The maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lioud, live in Paris.

G.O.P. Assembly Meets Tonight

Tonight at 8:00 o'clock the Monterey County Republican Assembly meets in Room 12, Carmel High School to elect officers. President Kenneth Ray will conduct the meeting, and Frank Adams is in charge of refreshments.

Daughter for the Beards

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Beard welcomed their first child Saturday in the person of a seven pound, 15 ounce daughter, born at Peninsula Community Hospital. They've named her Angela Jennifer.

Paisano Gets a Prize

El Paisano, the Monterey College yearbook, has been awarded a first place rating in the offset printing classification in the annual national competition sponsored by the Columbia Scholastic Press Association at Columbia University.

Co-editors of the prizewinning edition are Jim Angier of Carmel (who is an artist as well as a writer), and Sandy Wright of Del Rey Oaks. Staff members are Rudy Martin, Pat Curran, Laurel McQueen and Ralph Hamilton, with Mel Huden the faculty advisor.

Cubs Graduated

Rodney Allison, Leonard Wolff and Jim Zoellin, all of Den 4, Carmel Pack No. 107, received their Cub Scout graduation certificates last week in an impressive candle-light ceremony during the regular pack meeting at the Boy Scout House.

The boys' mothers, Mrs. S. I. Ransome, Mrs. Ivan R. Wolff, and Mrs. J. R. Zoellin, were among the guests who witnessed the ceremony. Cubmaster Bob Noyes officiated and handed out the awards, assisted by Howard Hinchcliff of the Boy Scout Council and J. C. Buffington, Jr., chairman of the pack committee.

Rodney, Leonard and Jim, who attained the Webelos rank in the Cubs, are now eligible to become Tenderfoot Scouts.

Lorraine Cockburn Wed

Lorraine Lowrie Cockburn, daughter of former Carmelites Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Cockburn, was married November 19 to Gerald Allen DeVore at the Church of the Ascension in Tujunga. Both the Cockburns and the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack DeVore, live in Tujunga.

The bride's parents were formerly co-owners of the Pine Cone with Ross Miller. They and Lorraine lived here for several years during the late 1930's. Lorraine, a native San Franciscan, had her early schooling here, later graduating from high school in San Fernando and attending UCLA for two years.

Lorraine's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Ada Winslow of Tujunga, also lived in Carmel for a number of years and was bookkeeper for the Pine Cone. Both Mrs. Winslow and Mr. and Mrs. James L. Cockburn of Marin County, the bride's paternal grandparents, were present for the wedding.

The bride's nine-year-old brother, Tony, served as altar boy and Mrs. Tony Rivera of Tujunga, the former Mary Ingels of Carmel, was the organist.

Lorraine and her husband, who honeymooned last week in Palm Springs, are making their home in Tujunga.

Mottas Leave for Europe

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Motta left Monday for their first visit to their homeland in nearly 35 years.

The Mottas emigrated to this country from Italy during the '20s, and since then have raised a family, seen their two children through school and college, and established themselves successfully in business, first on the east coast and finally here, where they operate the Spinning Wheel Restaurant.

Mexico City is the first stop on the Mottas' itinerary. They will continue their flight abroad with brief layovers in Panama, Baranquilla and Bermuda, and finally Lisbon, Madrid and Rome. One of the high points of the trip for both promises to be an audience with the Pope, arranged for them through the Most Rev. Aloysius Willinger, bishop of Monterey-Fresno. Another momentous occasion will be a visit to Mr. Motta's native city of Genoa, where he will be reunited with his brother for the first time since he came to this country. They will also visit in Mrs. Motta's birthplace, Turin, before continuing their trip in Switzerland and France. They plan to conclude their travels in Paris, and expect to be home in time to reopen their restaurant on New Year's Day.

During their absence, the Mottas' home here will be occupied by their daughter, Lillian, and her husband Dr. Mariano Montana, who returned only a fortnight ago from a six months' stay in Europe. The couple have been abroad since their marriage here last May, and have visited Dr. Montana's family in Verona as well as touring about the continent. Dr. Montana is a member of the Italian department faculty at the Army Language School.

The Mottas also have a son, Ronald, a student at Holy Cross College in Worcester, Massachusetts. They plan to visit him on their return trip from New York back to Carmel.

Audubon Field Trip

Shore and wading birds will occupy the attention of the Monterey Peninsula Audubon Society Saturday when the annual winter field trip to Moss Landing is scheduled to start at 9:00 o'clock in the morning. Meeting place is Highway No. One at Construction Road, the first road north of the cement bridge over Elkhorn Slough.

New members welcomed into the organization last month included Mrs. Anna S. Shipley, Carmel; Miss Constant M. Douglas, Mr. Carol Turner and Mrs. Miriam D. Cushing, Pacific Grove; and Mrs. W. R. Heard, Monterey.

Christmas Carnival

A Christmas Carnival for the benefit of the school library fund will take place tomorrow at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach from 2:00 to 5:00 o'clock, with the general public invited.

All sorts of Christmas gifts, cards, decorations and curios will be on sale, and there'll be a variety of games, movies, grab bags and other attractions as well. Peter Elkus is student chairman of the affair, assisted by Mrs. Alice Reiner, instructor in arts and crafts at the school.

Tom's Almost a Civilian

Tom and Janet Handley and their baby are here from San Leandro visiting his parents, the J. O. Handleys and getting a preview of what it will be like to settle down to civilian life again. Tom's three-year tour of duty with the Coast Guard will end December 20, which will really give him something to celebrate over Christmas. They'll spend the yuletide holiday here, since they went south last weekend to have Thanksgiving with Janet's parents. Keeping the J. O. Handleys company over the recent holiday were Mr. and Mrs. Vic McKenzie of Portland and Mrs. William Gargiulo.

Lewis-Fraties Wedding

Two families known in Carmel since the turn of the century were united Saturday afternoon with the marriage of Diane Lewis and Gail Fraties, which took place in St. John's Chapel with the Rev. Bernard Lovgren officiating.

Diane, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lew E. Lewis, was escorted to the candlelit altar by her father. Her sister, Doris Lewis of San Francisco, was maid-of-honor. Another sister, Mrs. E. L. Perkins (June Lewis), also came down with her husband from San Francisco for the wedding. Two of Diane's former Carmel High schoolmates, Audrey Campbell and Donna Douglas, were bridesmaids, while her niece, Linda Perkins, was junior bridesmaid.

Gail was also attended by several of his close friends from Carmel. Art Templeman was best man, while Don Adams and Bruce Hanger were ushers, along with John La Cotta, a former Stanford classmate. Gail's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Fraties of San Francisco, were among the wedding party. Mr. Fraties, formerly Carmel's chief of police, now works with the F.B.I. in San Francisco.

Diane's ballerina-length wedding gown was fashioned of white crystalettes sprinkled with sequins and topped by a white lace fitted jacket. A small coronet of sequins held her shoulder-length veil, and she carried an all-white bouquet of spider chrysanthemums centered around a single large orchid. Her attendants wore crystalettes frocks similar in styling to the bridal gown, but in contrasting autumnal shades: golden-bronze for the maid of honor, emerald green for the two bridesmaids. All three carried bouquets of green and brown tiger orchids, and wore net and velvet headdresses matching the shade of their dresses. The junior bridesmaid wore a ballerina dress of emerald green net and taffeta, and carried a small nosegay of pale green and white mums.

Following the wedding reception at La Playa Hotel, the new Mr. and Mrs. Fraties left for a brief honeymoon in Santa Rosa. They will make their home at Park Merced in San Francisco.

Chinese Financier Visits

Mr. Li Ming, leading Chinese financier and former chairman of the Banking Association in Shanghai, was the honor guest at a dinner party Monday evening given by Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lee at their home on Scenic Drive.

James Lee's acquaintance with Li Ming is one of long standing, both having been engaged in banking business in Shanghai, where Mr. Lee was also a leading industrialist before the war. Several other former Shanghai friends of Mr. Li's now living on the Peninsula were also present at the party, one of a number of entertainments given in his honor during his brief visit here. Mr. Li, who has recently been visiting in Hong Kong, returned to his present home in New York on Tuesday.

Present for the Lee's dinner party, in addition to the honor guest, were Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gilpatric of Carmel Valley, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Campbell of Carmel, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wen of Monterey, and Col. and Mrs. Allen Griffin of Pebble Beach, the latter of whom were Mr. Li's hosts for the weekend. Mr. Gilpatric was formerly with the American Consulate in Shanghai, while Mr. Campbell served there as judge with the American court. Dr. and Mrs. Wen are natives of Shanghai; Dr. Wen now teaches at the Army Language School, where Mr. Li's son-in-law was also until recently a faculty member.

Williams And Highly Winding Up 3 Months' Loon Count Project

There are co-operators at Point Reyes and Pigeon Point. Final reports will be gotten together after the count is completed, which will be the second week in December.

Besides the actual count, these men are finding out how close the migration follows the coast line and what effect barometric pressure has on the flights.

A Sister for Kim Stinson

Mr. and Mrs. John Stinson say that they didn't even think of the carol, Deck the Halls with Boughs of Holly, when they named their newborn daughter Holly Hall Stinson, but it has a nice Christmasy sound anyway.

Holly is the first girl for the Stinsons, who live on the Holt Ranch in Carmel Valley. The other member of the family is a 22-month-old boy, Kim. The new baby, who weighed seven pounds, seven ounces, arrived Saturday at Peninsula Community Hospital.

Grandma made the Post

Miriam Potter is tops in her field, children's fiction. She produces a book every year or so, and writes regularly on assignment for two children's magazines. The Potter grandchildren take this in their stride, no doubt under the impression that producing stories for children is the natural function of grandmothers. Then this week Miriam Potter had a four line thing in the Saturday Evening Post and the kids are rocked. Grandma's a writer!

Rumbles Visiting Here

Lt. and Mrs. James Douglas Rumble and their three children are here for a brief visit with her parents, Cmdr. and Mrs. Howell Armor. The Rumbles, who live in Southern California, are enroute to San Francisco.

... Their SAFETY IS ...
EVERYBODY'S BUSINESS

Now that the children are back in school, it is everyone's responsibility to maintain the highest possible degree of care. Don't leave their safety up to the policeman at the intersection, or the teacher and playground supervisor at school. It is up to all of us to do our part and remember the basic safety rules. Do not pass stopped busses. Drive slowly past schools and playgrounds. Stop at pedestrian crossings. Remember, they are our children; their safety is our responsibility.

Safety is one of your water company's responsibilities, too. Keeping water safe for human consumption is one of the most important functions of a public water-supply system. We operate under a license issued by the State Board of Health, and water is examined weekly by the County Health Board. Also, our company maintains two fully equipped laboratories for testing purposes. Control samples are taken systematically, and special tests are made whenever conditions require them.

NEW THEATRE MANAGER

Larry Whitman, formerly of San Francisco, is the new manager of the Carmel Theatre, succeeding Dolph Tewes.

Mr. Whitman, who moved into town last week from the Bay Area, has been in show business for much of his life. Included in his experience is six years on the legitimate stage and four years as a professional magician, when he toured the United States, Mexico and Canada.

Before taking over the Carmel Theatre management, Mr. Whitman owned his own motion picture house in San Francisco.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERMON

The understanding of the goodness of God which brings lasting peace and harmony will be brought out at Christian Science services Sunday in the Lesson-Sermon entitled "God the Only Cause and Creator."

Selections to be read from the King James Version of the Bible will include the following from Revelation (4:11): "Thou art worthy, O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power: for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created."

From "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy the following selection will be among those read (69:13): "Spiritually to understand that there is but one creator, God, unfolds all creation, confirms the Scriptures, brings the sweet assurance of no parting, no pain, and of man deathless and perfect and eternal."

The Golden Text is from Genesis (1:1): "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth."

Madelynne Greene's Dancers At Sunset

Tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock in Sunset Auditorium Madelynne Greene's Festival Workshop dancers will present a program of international folk dances in authentic costume for the benefit of the Monterey Bay Area Council for Retarded Children.

The group of thirty dancers, all of them professionals, some of them with other vocations, will perform among the 25 dances on the program, three newly-choreographed by Madelynne Greene as a result of her research in Europe during the past year. These three are the Jota, a brilliant Spanish folk dance, the Andeo-Cuzzo from Mallorca and a Fandango from the Basque country.

Benefit Holiday Tea

At the Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach the Holiday Table Setting Tea will be held from 2:00 to 5:00 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

More than 20 tables will be on display, reflecting the decorating talents of several local shops as well as arrangements made by individual contributors. There'll be arrangements stressing fine linen, antique silver, rare china and a variety of novel Christmas ideas, as well as a "do it yourself" table and a children's corner, featuring decorations by Wendy and Robin Burnham, Donna Work and Polly Gann.

Mrs. Walter C. Adams of Carmel is general chairman of the tea, with Mrs. William A. Cassidy

Carmel Regains Its Artists

To anyone traveling around the continent this past month, it must have seemed like old home week. From Italy to Istanbul, Carmelites by the dozen are touring around and running into other Carmelites, particularly artists. A large contingent of these junketing natives returned home this week, or will be home shortly.

First back to home base were Mrs. Burton Doolittle and Kathryn Aurner, who arrived here week before last, having made the voyage back on the luxurious new Christoforo Colombo. Mrs. Aurner and Mrs. Doolittle, along with the latter's sister-in-law, Mrs. Marjorie Doolittle, left on their trip early in September, stopped first in London and then spent a week in Paris, where they ran into Gene McComas. The group then parted company temporarily, Mrs. Burton Doolittle going on to Germany while Marjorie and Katie visited Switzerland.

Italy proved the social hub for a great number of the travellers. The two Doolittles and Mrs. Aurner regrouped in Venice, then went on to Milan, Florence and Rome, meeting up with various other artists and Carmelites along the way: Patricia Cunningham, Florence True, Kathryn Bradley, and Mrs. G. B. Henderson and her daughter Sherry.

Kathryn Bradley, Marjorie Doolittle and Florence True are due home sometime this weekend, having arrived in New York yesterday aboard the Saturnia. Mrs. Henderson and Sherry have also arrived on the east coast, but plan to do some visiting before heading west. Pat Cunningham, too, is expected home shortly.

Going—Going— But Not Gone!

Saturday they got set to auction off "Sis" Brown's house for non-payment of taxes. Buck Stone was the auctioneer. Everybody who came to the auction knew that "Sis" is a war widow.

When Buck began the bidding he said, "Anybody can bid. Just remember 'Sis' and three nice kids live here. Now who's going to start the bidding?"

There was silence. "Sis," standing in back, got the point. She reached into her purse for just about all the money she had in the world. "I'll bid $75," she said.

"Sold," bellowed Buck and "Sis" had her home back.

From where I sit, Buck Stone used a helping hand instead of a gavel. It was real neighborliness. You know, even in something as small as respecting another's choice of beverage, a person can be neighborly. You might like buttermilk. I'm "sold" on a temperate glass of beer. And I can't "buy" anyone's telling me I'm wrong.

Cecil "Pop" Smith Has Continuous Love Affair With The General Public

(Continued from Page One) get jobs. He earned nine dollars from a telegraph company for two weeks work. The Union Oil Company employed him for a time. He was a mail carrier in San Francisco. Then a street car conductor. He probably liked that job for it gave him a chance to help old ladies off and on the car and probably the young rascal enjoyed the younger women as well. The passengers would sometimes hand him a five or ten dollar gold piece for the fare expecting the conductor to take out the nickel and give them the change. He handled that problem efficiently by giving them a receipt for the money and bidding them go to headquarters for their change.

Then the 1906 earthquake struck and the fire blazed and the young Smiths escaped to a friend's house in the outskirts, and Luella, who was something of a musician played The Burning of Rome on the piano until the fire died out.

More unremunerative jobs at Port Townsend, Seattle, San Luis Obispo and the births of five children. And then his loved wife died of the flu and Cecil was left with the care of a large family. He enlisted again in the Army, this time in the medical corps, in order to finance the care of his dependents. One child died and the other four grew up. Bill, his hero son, a Marine on Cavite when the Japanese first struck at the Philippines, had been wounded on Bataan, had been awarded the Purple Heart and for gallantry in action the Silver Star. He met his death in the sinking of a Japanese prison ship. The other three children who have grown to adulthood are furnishing Pop with grandchildren, all of whom he adores.

Since settling in Carmel sixteen years ago he has found his way right into the hearts of the Carmelites. He is always willing to help out in any community project. His great optimism has kept him cheerful and active. When any group wants something done they go to Pop Smith. When the Craft Guild wanted a Town Crier for their fair at the Forest Theater, the City Council which frowns on loud raucous noises, agreed to grant the permit provided that Pop Smith was the Town Crier. So the women dressed him up in a ruffled shirt, a three cornered hat, white stockings and knee pants with buckles and he went through the village crying the merits of the fair to the gaping villagers and noisily ringing a cowbell. One tourist was heard to exclaim: "Really, Amelia, these people are all insane!"

When the Artists' Ball was held recently it was Pop who masqueraded as a woman and was made up by the operators of a leading beauty salon so successfully that his own son didn't know him. He showed me a picture that was taken of him and I'll have to say that he looked downright bawdy. He plays minor parts in all the Peninsula theaters and receives tender and enthusiastic eulogies from the critics, be it the part of a Chinese laundryman or a beetle-browed bandit.

Shortly after he came here and took possession of his penthouse on Seventh Avenue he became an amateur sidewalk photographer. Subjects were mostly dogs and he has 820 photos to prove it. He says: "Everywhere I looked there were dogs, dogs and more dogs, so I sez Old Man here's a hobby for you. Take snapshots of all you can see." He also took names and places of residence of the owners and gave one picture to the owner of each dog. During the war he transferred his activities from pooches to babies and many a service wife carried back home a snapshot of herself and her offspring which was presented to her by Pop along with his smile and best wishes.

Pop has a continuous love affair with the general public and is the greatest letter writer of all time. When serving on election boards he writes pleading notes for the Pine Cone imploring the public to register and vote. When he is helping the Post Office at Christmas time he gives detailed instructions through the paper of the methods and restrictions in the ending of parcels and begging the public to put their mail in the right slots. At such times he is Uncle Sam himself. He gets his dander up when any transient visitor offers the slightest criticism of Carmel.

During the last war Pop performed the duties of night clerk at the Mission Inn in Monterey. And for the past several years he has been the hospitable ticket taker at the Carmel Theater. He claims that he knows and can call the name of each patron. And he probably can.

The secret of Pop's popularity is his love of people, his intense interest in their problems, his ingenuousness and his generosity. He has fun in everything he does. He enjoys life whether going up to San Francisco to play Santa Claus at the Children's Hospital Clinic or being a recipient of a birthday dinner given by his friends. His scrap book contains a photo of one of these occasions when he is being warmly kissed by a beautiful female. And Pop even enjoys that diversion as the expression on his face will testify. Pretty spry I'd say for a man who is about to become an octogenarian. He expects to fly to England next year to celebrate his 80th birthday. By the way he has played golf for twelve years and has just decided to take some lessons although I understand that at times he has made some sensational shots.
